

Alexandria Gazette

FRIDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 7.

PATTI'S TROUBLES.—Adeline Patti failed to obtain a divorce from the Marquis de Caux for ill usage because she failed to prove her allegations, and the Marquis de Caux did obtain a divorce or separation from Patti by demonstration made to the court. Thereby the said Marquis was left with a handsome fortune as the result of his matrimonial speculations, this fortune consisting of the half of what was saved of Patti's earnings. Exasperated by this result the Patti was apparently determined not to give it up so, and now she comes into court and boldly declares that she never was married to the said Marquis de Caux. There was a marriage ceremony which she had every reason to believe valid, but of which she was the innocent victim. The priest who married them was not licensed to perform this ceremony. Under the English statute a marriage by a priest not so licensed is not valid, and under the law of France a marriage performed in a foreign country is not valid unless all the formalities required by the law of that foreign country are strictly observed. Such is Patti's case in her demand that the marriage be declared null.
